

VERMONT WON ANOTHER

Defeated Manhattan College,
3 to 1, Yesterday

HAYNES PITCHED WELL

Two of His Pitches, However, Were Instrumental in Bringing in the Single Tally Made by the New Yorkers.

Burlington, June 2.—The university of Vermont made it two straight from Manhattan college yesterday afternoon by the score of 3 to 1. Haynes pitched fine ball for Vermont, allowing but four hits and striking out eleven men. He was a trifle wild, however, passing four men, one of which resulted in a tally in the eighth when followed by a single, another pass and a sacrifice fly.

Vermont got six hits off Archer and earned two of its three scores. In the second inning Collins swatted for three bases and McConnell singled, bringing Collins in. Haynes sacrificed and Hill doubled, sending McConnell across. Again Collins hit safely in the third for two bases, bringing in Collins, who had got first on Hill's error and sacrifice to second. Both teams fielded well. The score:

	Vermont.	Manhattan.
Collins, 2 b	4 1 1 4 2 0	3 0 0 0 2 0
Williams, r f	3 0 0 0 2 0	4 0 0 0 1 1

BLADDER TROUBLES NEED PROMPT ATTENTION.

Perhaps you don't know how much work is required of your kidneys and bladder or of how much importance they are. Do you know that on these important organs hinges good health? Many an apparently strong, healthy man or woman has been stricken with sudden notice by serious kidney and bladder disease only to realize too late what might have been prevented with proper care and attention.

Some of the early symptoms of weak kidneys and bladder are: backache, rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints or muscles, at times have headache or indigestion, dizziness, you may have a sallow complexion, puffiness or dark circles under the eyes, sometimes feel as though you had heart trouble, may have plenty of ambition but no strength, get weak and waste away.

If you find you have some of the symptoms mentioned, you need then a remedy that will reach the seat of the disease and at the same time build up the system generally.

Such a remedy is Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. In thousands of cases it has accomplished just the work you need performed now.

Sample Bottle of Swamp-Root Free by Mail.

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing be sure and mention the Barre Daily Times. For sale at all drug stores. Price, fifty cents and one dollar.

They include sarsaparilla, stillingia, yellow dock, gentian, wild cherry bark, mandrake, dandelion, juniper berries, pipisewa, etc.

The combination and proportions are our own formula and give power to cure beyond the reach of any other prescription or substitute. That's why it is wise to get Hood's and only Hood's.

POLICE HUNT FOR LOST BRIDEGROOM

Boston Girl Deserted in New York—She Says H. C. Reed Disappeared With Her Few Dollars.

New York, June 2.—There is a deserted bride at the Grand Union hotel. She is a little beauty, too, with big blue eyes that are all wisdom and innocence. According to her, a young dandy who called himself Herbert C. Reed, a Harvard law student, married her and told her glittering stories of his wealth and social importance.

Whoever Herbert C. Reed is, he is not a Harvard law student. In fact, the directory of the 1909 Harvard catalog reveals that there is no Herbert C. Reed in the entire student body, nor was there at any time during the past year.

The young man, according to his bride, who is scarcely bigger than a child and only 18 years old, brought her to New York Saturday afternoon and deserted her at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, leaving behind him, however, his trunk and grip, both of which contain much fine raiment. This fact injects some mystery into Herbert C. Reed's disappearance.

All Sunday afternoon and night, all day Monday and that night, Mrs. Herbert C. Reed sat by the window of her room in the hotel watching and waiting. Yesterday morning when a reporter saw her eyes were red and drawn from much weeping.

She said she first saw Reed two years ago, when she was employed in a Boston restaurant. She lived with friends at 80 Worcester street, Boston. Her name was Winifred Jener, and her parents are living in Glasgow, Scotland. She has supported herself since she was 16 years old.

Reed was a constant patron of the restaurant where she worked, and began to make love to her a year ago. He told her then that he was a Harvard student and expected to be graduated this spring. He was the son of a St. Louis railroad founder, he said, and always seemed to be plentifully supplied with money.

Winifred Jener believed everything he told her, and three months ago consented to marry him. He brought a Methodist minister to her home and a ceremony was performed. He put the marriage certificate in his pocket. She trusted him so implicitly that she never thought to look at it.

The minister, she was led to believe, had chided at Vermont and Vermont streets, Boston. That is all she knows about him. She did not even get his name. At the time of the marriage Reed said the fact would have to be kept secret until after his graduation. Then he would take his bride to this city and give her an immensely wealthy uncle.

Last Friday, the young man told her, he had received his diploma (a month in advance of the usual time of awarding them), and had made all his plans to come immediately to this city. Mrs. Reed withdrew her savings, $100, from the bank and packed her trunk. He showed her a roll of $400, she said yesterday, and they left Boston on an early train Saturday morning.

"He was always just as kind and gentle as he could be," she said yesterday, "and I loved him so completely that I believed everything he told me. He took me to the theatre, and we had a delightful time and splendid dinners."

"On Sunday afternoon he asked me to let him have my money, as he was going out to find his uncle and feared I might have it stolen. So I let him have $27, almost all I had. Then he went away and did not come back. He said he would fix it with his uncle so that he could take me on to St. Louis and introduce me to his parents. He had been estranged from them, he said, because of his 'wild' wildness."

House detective Birmingham was the first person in the hotel to notice the young woman's distress and when he heard her story Monday night he advised that a general alarm be sent out for the missing young man. He is described as tall and slender and blond. He always dressed immaculately. A general alarm for him has been sent out from police headquarters. The Boston police were also asked to find out what they could about him.

EASY WIN FOR CORNELL

Beat Harvard in Both 'Varsity and Freshmen Events.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 1.—The Cornell team yesterday easily defeated their Harvard rivals, in both the varsity and freshmen events, for eight-oared crews, winning the "big" race by a length and a half, in 10 minutes and 41 seconds, and the freshmen event, by four lengths, in 11 minutes flat. In both races the Cornell crew led from start to finish.

More than 15,000 persons witnessed the two contests, after from the observation trains and boats or from the shores of Cayuga lake. The races were late in getting started. The lake was fairly smooth early in the afternoon, but Coach Courtney decided to wait until shortly after 4 o'clock, when under conditions almost ideal, the rival "varsity" crews came up to the starting point.

NOTABLE NAVAL DINNER.

Weeks to Be Toastmaster for Class of '91.

Washington, June 2.—Representative John Weeks visited the White House yesterday morning, when President Taft conferred to him his tentative promise to attend the dinner of the class of '91, naval academy, at the Metropolitan club to-night. Captain Weeks will be toastmaster. The dinner will be noteworthy, as the speakers will be, besides the president, Secretary Meyer, Baron Uriu, the Japanese admiral, Baron Takahira, the Japanese ambassador, and Speaker Cannon.

KAISER DEMANDS LETTERS

Said to Show His Support of Abdul Hamid—Coming Turko-Russian War in Persia, It Is Rumored.

Paris, June 2.—The foreign office has authorized a categorical denial of the story first published in the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger that the sudden recall of M. Constant, the French ambassador to Turkey, and M. Zinovieff, the Russian ambassador, was due to the discovery in the Yildiz Palace of documents showing that Abdul Hamid, the deposed sultan, had paid the former $10,000 and the latter $4,000 a month for a term of months. It pronounces this allegation as a calumny absolutely without foundation, and explains that the nomination of M. Bompard and M. Tchernykhoff as French and Russian ambassadors to Turkey were made after an understanding between the two governments, whose purpose is to secure harmony of action between their representatives accredited to the new regime in Turkey.

KAISER WANTS LETTERS BACK.

German Ambassador Makes Demand For Epistles Sent to Abdul Hamid.

Constantinople, June 2.—German Ambassador von Biberstein visited Grand Vizier Hilmi Pasha and made a demand for the return of the letters written by Emperor William to former Sultan Abdul Hamid during the crisis last April. These letters are said to prove the Kaiser's support of Abdul's despotism and Germany's haste to recover them is considered significant. The grand vizier told von Biberstein that the letters were still in the possession of the Young Turk investigating committee and that until they were surrendered to the government it would be impossible to comply with the request.

CANAL LIBEL CASE COMES UP.

The Owners of Indianapolis News in Court.

Indianapolis, June 2.—Charged with having committed criminal libel in publishing articles charging there was corruption in the purchase of the Panama Canal by the United States, Delavan Smith and Charles R. Williams, owners of the Indianapolis News, appeared before Judge Anderson in the United States district court yesterday, resisting the effort of the government to remove them for trial to the District of Columbia.

More Money in Bank.

Concord, N. H., June 2.—Total deposits in the savings banks of New Hampshire on April 18 last of $8,350,000 were reported yesterday, in a statement prepared at the call of the controller of the currency, and made public today by the savings bank commission. Between June 30, 1908, and April 28, 1909, the deposits increased $2,115,535, compared with an increase of $451,130 between June 30, 1907, and June 30, 1908.

Don't Crowd Out Business

If the telephone facilities of a business house or professional office are fully occupied by outgoing calls, it is apparent that incoming calls are being crowded out. It is easy to see the possibilities of loss in such a condition or possibilities that could not exist if confronted with the time-and-money economies of a Special Line.

It costs nothing to have a careful estimate made of your business requirements; simply call up the local Manager.

COURT DELAYS SENTENCE.

Associate Thus Gets Time to Prepare for Liquor Drought.

Washington, June 2.—In the cases of former Sheriff Ship and others of Chattanooga, charged with contempt of the supreme court of the United States, permitting a negro to be lynched, the court yesterday postponed the passing of sentence, to permit the prisoners to file petitions for a rehearing.

The cases therefore go over until next term, the prisoners remaining out on bond.

In connection with the motions for permission to file the petitions for a rehearing an incident occurred, which caused even the members of the court to smile. Attorney Chamber, representing Williams, who is said to be in the liquor business, calling attention to Tennessee's new prohibition law, said:

"Down in Tennessee we are expecting a long drought in the liquor business and my client wants time to prepare for it."

ROOSEVELT TO VISIT MISSION.

Will Go to Kijabe, Probably on Friday.

Nairobi, East Africa, June 2.—Theodore Roosevelt is going to visit the station at Kijabe of the African Inland Mission, an American organization. He probably will make the journey next Friday.

The Africa Inland Mission is independent and self-controlling in the field, though represented by home councils in Philadelphia and London. The purpose of the mission is the evangelization, so far as possible, of the tribes in the interior of Africa, who have never heard the gospel. The headquarters are at Kijabe, where schools are conducted for missionaries' children and for the industrial training of natives.

STEVENS QUILTS NEW HAVEN.

Resigns as Vice-President, to Take a Vacation With Hill.

New Haven, Conn., June 2.—It was announced officially at the offices of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company yesterday that John F. Stevens, vice-president in charge of operation, "has resigned to accept service elsewhere." The official circular, which bears the date of May 29, 1909, says:

"John F. Stevens, vice-president in charge of operation, has resigned to accept service elsewhere. The position is abolished. The general manager will report to the president."

At the New Haven office nothing is known as to the position that Mr. Stevens will assume, but it is generally believed that it will be in the west on the James J. Hill properties.

FRENCH UNION BAN.

Decision Against One in the Postal Department.

Paris, June 2.—The procureur of the republic has decided that the union hastily formed by employees of the department of posts and telegraphs during the recent strike is an illegal body and must be dissolved within two weeks. This union expressed the other day a wish to affiliate with the General Federation of Labor, a proposal which the general association of postal employees condemned.

SHOT BROTHER-IN-LAW.

Kentucky Affray in Which a Man May Die.

Bowling Green, Ky., June 2.—Charles Campbell, a well known citizen of this place, shot and perhaps fatally wounded his brother-in-law, Jesse G. Ballard, yesterday morning. It is alleged that Campbell found Ballard in the company of Mrs. Campbell at his home and that this was the cause of the shooting.

NO PUBLIC WORKS IN CUBA.

Result of The Depletion of The Treasury.

Havana, June 2.—Representative Cortina, chairman of the Committee on Public Works, announced at the session of the House yesterday that on account of the depletion of the treasury the committee had fully resolved not to approve any new project for public works.

"DOCTOR'S DAUGHTER."

A Medical Preparation Which Originates in Westery.

Some who are not familiar with the name, and also many who some two years ago read the writing of "Doctor's Daughter" in some of the leading publications have asked who is "Doctor's Daughter." And since the name is lacking one of the most popular medicines of the day, the question is not to be wondered at. "Doctor's Daughter" is Mrs. Carolyn Wilbur Morse, daughter of Dr. John Wilbur, who, a few years ago, practiced medicine here with his father, Dr. William H. Wilbur, and both were well known and considered far above the ordinary in their profession. Dr. William H. Wilbur, "Doctor's Daughter's" grandfather, was a Quaker, who broke the rule of his church to serve his country in the Civil war as a physician and surgeon, and a more wholehearted man than he never practiced medicine.

His son, Dr. John Wilbur, "Doctor's Daughter's" father, realizing that Westery was too limited a field for the practice he desired, gave medical lectures in nearly all the large cities throughout the United States and acquired a remarkable medical reputation. "Doctor's Daughter" has made a reputation equal, if not superior, to her father, through her writings for newspapers and magazines, which she has given entirely up to devote all of her time to the introduction of her now famous remedy, "Stomach Bile."

"Doctor's Daughter" is the only woman known to us holding a like position and has done it all by hard and conscientious work, and well deserves the success which seems in store for her. Westery, E. L. Sun.

MIKADO HONORS FAIRBANKS.

Vice-president and Wife Were Received in Audience.

Tokio, June 2.—Former Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks and Mrs. Fairbanks were received in audience by the emperor and empress of Japan Monday. They were presented to their majesties by Ambassador O'Brien, and afterward had luncheon at the palace. The emperor was especially cordial. He said he desired Mr. Fairbanks to understand that he was a welcome visitor to Japan and he wished him also to carry back to the people of America an assurance of the ever increasing reliance of the Japanese people upon the good will of the United States. The emperor inquired particularly after the health of President Taft, and the former vice-president replied in cordial terms. Decoration day exercises were held at the Yokohama naval hospital Monday afternoon, and blue-jackets from the visiting American squadron forming a guard for the ceremonies. Among those present were Mr. Fairbanks, Ambassador O'Brien and Admiral Harbor of the American navy. An address was delivered by Dr. T. Greene of Boston.

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER

WILL VANISH

Everybody knows that Hyomei cures catarrh. But there are many sufferers from asthma and hay fever who don't know that Hyomei will give them instant relief and if used regularly permanent cure.

But The Red Cross Pharmacy knows so well what Hyomei will do that they guarantee it to cure catarrh, hay fever and asthma.

Surely it's worth a trial on that basis and why people continue to choke and wheeze and spit and hawk and snuffle when a certain cure is at hand is beyond the comprehension of human intelligence.

When you breathe Hyomei deep into your lungs you breathe exactly the same pleasant antiseptic baby air that you would breathe in the forests of pine and eucalyptus of inland Australia.

"Doctoring and remedies never helped my hay fever, till I used Hyomei. It gave me great relief, and has my endorsement."—Louis A. Grobe, Flint, Mich.

Complete Hyomei outfit is only $1.00, and extra bottles 50 cents. A Hyomei outfit consists of a bottle of Hyomei, a hard rubber inhaler, medicine dropper and full instructions for use. Just breathe it in and get immediate relief.

AN AGITATED YOUNG MAN.

By M. QUAD.

(Copyright, 1909, by T. C. McClure.)
Young Mr. Graham, the grandson of a grandmother who had brought him up in the way he should go, took a chair car from Philadelphia to New York on a certain date and found the chair on his right occupied by a very good looking and self composed young lady. When she dropped her handkerchief he ought to have picked it up and restored it, but he didn't. When she had trouble opening her hand bag he ought to have proffered his services, but he didn't. When her harpin worked out and fell at his feet there was opportunity for him to prove himself a hero, but he wasn't up to it. His grandmother had warned him over and over again of the consequences of too much forwardness. He was agitated, but it went no further. Of course when the young lady realized what sort of young man he was she gave him the cold shoulder. She asked the porter to raise the window for her and to bring her a glass of water and if she would be sure to make connection with the Long Island train for Hempstead.

Young Mr. Graham felt his position keenly, but opportunity had fled. Reaching New York, he would have given worlds to warn the young lady not to take the Twenty-third street ferry by mistake for the Thirty-fourth, but he had his chance and lost. It was while he was hanging back that he discovered her purse where it had dropped while she was picking up her harpin. He started to rush after her to restore it, but in his agitation addressed a stately old dame who took him for a confidence man and threatened to have him arrested. When he came to overhaul the purse he found that it contained $1.50 and a trunk key. He reasoned it out that this was all the loser had with her and that when landing on the New York side she would find herself in an embarrassing situation. How was she to cross the island? How pay her fare to Hempstead?

Here was more agitation, and it ended in the young man taking the next ferryboat. He did not find her weeping in the ferryhouse on the other side. He was also disappointed in not finding her in the East river house.

He crossed the river to the Long Island depot, but the object of his search was not there. It was a bad night Mr. Graham put in, and it was made longer and the worse for a sudden thought that came to him about midnight. The purse contained less than $2. The young lady's dress and jewelry showed that she belonged to a wealthy family. To restore such a loan purse to her would be a handsome thing. It certainly would. She would probably refuse to claim ownership and look upon him with withering scorn. After turning the matter over in his mind for three hours young Mr. Graham saw his way clear. He would add $5 to the contents of the purse.

Hempstead is not an overgrown town, and a persevering young man like Mr. Graham can find lots of things if he becomes chummy with the hackmen. It wasn't two hours before our hero had the name of the young girl and her abiding place. She was living with her widower of a father less than a mile away. It took him two hours to quell his agitation and make up his mind to drive to the house, but at last the thing was done. It seemed as if luck was with him. When the carriage stopped he beheld the selfsame young lady sitting on the veranda with a book in her hand.

"Beg pardon," he said, "but I was your fellow traveler from Philadelphia yesterday, and when you left the chair car I found this on the floor."

"But—but I don't understand," replied the young lady as she received the purse. "I didn't speak to you, and how did you know where I lived?"

"Why, while I was not listening—be lieve me, I was not—I heard you ask the porter about the train for Hempstead."

"Yes, I believe I did. I was dreadfully afraid I'd miss it. Won't you sit down? This was only my change purse, you know. I missed it, but it was of no account, except that it held the key to my trunk. However, I thank you, and—"

And she opened the purse to view the contents. There was her dollar eighty, and a five dollar bill besides. She looked up in a puzzled way and said:

"This can't be mine."

"But I found it under your chair, miss."

"But how did this other money come here? I'm sure I hadn't it."

Mr. Graham turned red. His tongue refused to move. He saw the young lady pit and mopped his forehead, but it was too late. The situation had
